

REFORM ARE NOT ON YOUR SIDE

Reform MPs voted to block the Employment Rights Bill that will deliver fair pay and stronger rights at work.

When it mattered most, Nigel Farage's Reform MPs turned their backs on workers, and voted to block laws to deliver fair pay and stronger rights at work.

Labour's Employment Rights Bill is the first step in making the New Deal for Working People a reality. It will raise wages and strengthen workplace protections. It's the biggest boost to workers' rights in decades.

Reform claim they stand for up working people. But the truth is their MPs turned their backs on workers when they sided with bad bosses, and voted to block the Employment Rights Bill.

Reform MPs voted to block:

- Ending Fire and Rehire
- Stopping exploitative zero hours contracts
- Flexible working and family-friendly rights
- A new enforcement agency to crack down on bad employers
- More say at work so unions can raise pay and improve conditions

LABOUR IS ON YOUR SIDE, WITH A NEW DEAL FOR WORKERS.

Reform MPs turned their backs on working people when it mattered.